Recently I have had these summaries brought into the Black Book both for convenience of reading and for greater efficiency in handling. Sometimes two or three of these booklets are taken out in a single day. I think they contain all of the important information culled from the tremendous mass of material now available and that are accumulated each twenty-four hour. The recent discovery of the missiles has added a tremendous amount of such material and will continue to grow as a great deal from day to day. The problem is how to avoid being overwhelmed by the mass of information, and I think the present arrangements sufficiently make that difficult.

I am attaching two of the current booklets which I hope you will glance through in order to familiarize yourself with the manner in which the information is presented. I will send those booklets each week by regular mail at the White House.
